The thieves worked in the trecess breaking one of the glass it is judged that it was first cracked with a hammer, or some other instrument, and then out with a diamond until a triangular piece could be lifted out. There were heavy curtains on the inside of the window, which probably deadened the noise glass falling inside. About four o'cleak in the morning a wagon was noticed making considerable moles over the orbite stones between the street railroad tracks, and it is thought that this was a ruse of the linewes.
